

And the things to learn seemed like impassable mountains

*School has always been a
place too rigid
for me*

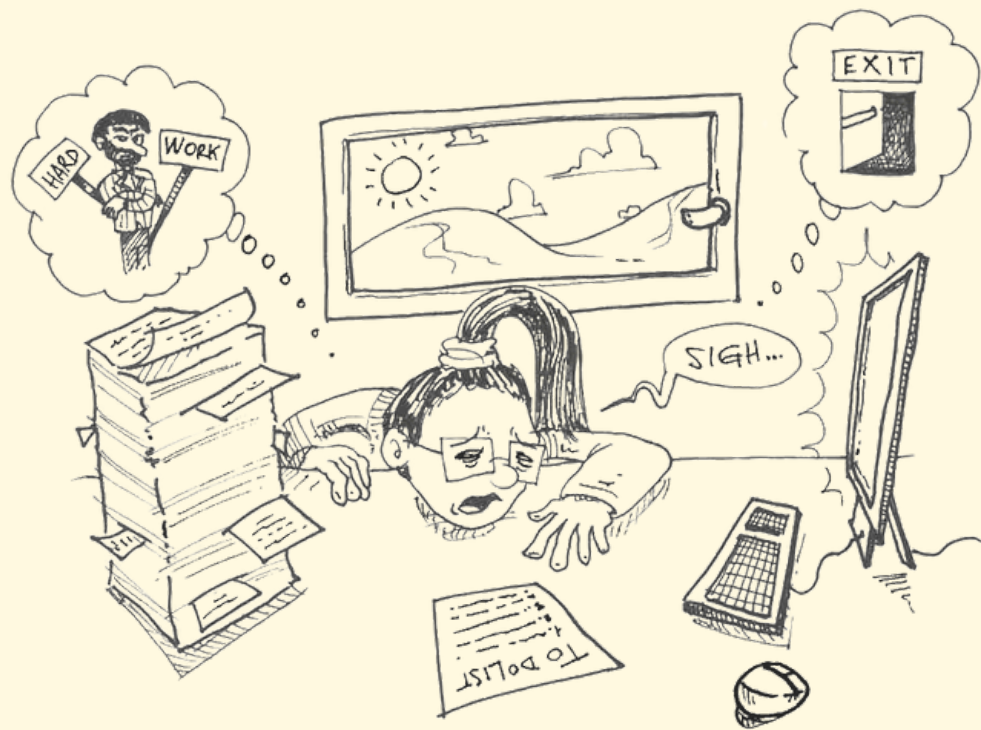

Although studying and learning has always been my greatest aspiration, it has always been a very difficult and frustrating thing for me

And the end of school marked a great moment of relief for me!
I cried for days after my final exam.

The difficulties of school have become
difficulties in the world
of work.
Motivation disorder,
boss inflexibility, my
attempts at masking.
My skills completely
wasted.

A challenging life
that requires me to reflect deeply and continually on myself, to tirelessly
study ways to educate my brain to find ways to be functional.
